Show to make some magic

Author(s): REGAN FOSTER - rfoster@nwherald.com Date:
April 19, 2007 Section: News

Glenn Chelius of Crystal Lake has nothing up his sleeve. Rather, he uses that sleeve as a place to proudly display his passion for illusion. And for his next trick, the longtime magician and professional sales representative will make tickets to the Raue Center for the Arts disappear. Chelius is teaming with some prominent names in Midwestern magic Saturday to present a family-friendly magic, vaudeville and ventriloquism show to benefit the Raue.

"I'm really fortunate to be able to follow my dreams," said Chelius, 42. "The coolest thing with the Raue is when my daughter had her first dance recital, it was [there].

"You've got a Bill Cosby and all these big names, but the stage is there for people like my daughter."

Chelius got his first magic set as a gift when he was a boy.

Now he is passing on his love for theater and performance to his three children: Celine, 10, Cole, 8, and Christian, 6.

Hidden in the basement of Chelius' Crystal Lake home, tucked away behind a sturdy-looking hardwood bookshelf loaded with antique books on illusion and magical props, is the room where the magic happens.

Literally.

"When we finished this basement, I needed a place to keep my magic stuff," Chelius said, pulling the bookshelf - which is hinged mounted on a large door - away from the wall to reveal a small office. The well-organized room is about the size of a closet and is filled with magic props, tricks and gags. Its walls are lined with signed pictures of fellow performers, including Harry Anderson of "Night Court" fame, Svengoolie and Bozo the Clown.

"I've been doing magic since I was 6 years old, and some of this stuff is that old," Chelius said, adding that his children have shown early signs of interest in illusion.

As if on cue, an Easter basket with an extra-long handle hovered its way into Chelius' basement. Upon further investigation, the source of the illusion turned out to be Christian, who was carefully holding the handle at the very end and guiding the basket down the stairs.

Although the illusion was a simple, if not accidental, one, it's definitely in the spirit of Saturday's fundraiser.

Dubbed "Nothin' Up My Sleeve 5," the show will feature magicians Arthur Trace, Tomas Medina and David Kovac. Ventriloquist Chuck Field and his assistant "Ziggy" will emcee the show that Chelius and fellow performer Nino Cruz are coproducing.

Tickets cost $15 or $18 and may be ordered by calling the Raue Center Box Office at (815) 356-9212. Proceeds will go to the Raue Center.

Richard Kuranda, executive director of the Raue Center, said he was skeptical when he first found out about the program. That doubt since has vanished like a lovely assistant from a glass box.

"It's really a wonderful opportunity," Kuranda said. "I'm looking forward to it. At first, I have to admit, I was not sure what to think of it, but the more I read about [magic], the more intrigued I've become."
